

Artist Jana Napoli explains her installation 'Floodwall', which consists of 350 drawers which she found on the streets of New Orleans after the 'Katrina' flood at an exhibition on the aftermath of hurricane 'Katrina' at 'Deutsches Auswanderer Haus' ('House of German Expatriates') in Bremerhaven, Germany, 29 January 2009. The moving-away of more than one million US citizens after hurricane 'Katrina' is at the centre of the exhibition running from February 2nd to May 10th 2009 under the motto: 'Nach der Flut die Flucht. New Orleans - die ausgewanderte Stadt' (After the flood came the escape. New Orleans - the emigrated City). EPA/CARMEN JASPERSEN